Krapina City Gallery is operated under the Open University of Krapina. This splendid 19th century manor house has a long tradition of being a cradle of new ideas.

Before the Majcen family of lawyers donated it to the city, there gathered the renowned names of the Illyrian Movement such as the great Croatian patron of the arts, Archbishop Strossmayer. From its opening in 1993, the Gallery has set up over 130 exhibitions of modern Croatian painters and sculptors.
